

Proposed File/Project Structure

Ethan Danstrom
10-21-2013

This is a proposed system to accommodate the numerous services we use through the course of a project. This holistic solution accommodates a variety of systems and allows the team to continue to work in the way they find most productive. A benefit of this system would be establishing best practices for services like Evernote and Google docs as well as setting behaviors for new services as they are added. The pricing notes are estimates because the different services charge according to differing metrics.

